To Whom It May Concern,

It is with great pleasure that I write a letter of recommendation on behalf of Christy Kane, PhD. I have had the opportunity to see Dr. Kane present on a multitude of occasions on specific topics related to adolescent mental health. On the first occasion, I attended a session during the NASRO (National Association of School Resource Officers) conference, and her presentation, as well as her genuineness presenting the topic left a standing impression on me and my colleagues. I serve on the conference committee for TASRO (Texas Association of School Resource Officers) and she was invited to be a speaker at a mental health summit our organization hosted. During this summit, she continued to impress all the attendees with her thoughtful and knowledgeable presentation.

Since that time TASRO has had her back to present at the two yearly school safety conferences and her ability to present such in depth information while making it still relatable to those in the field, who are not mental health professionals, is impeccable.

I highly recommend Dr. Kane to be a presenter at any event discussing mental health. She is able to provide a wealth of knowledge, while being able to keep the participants engaged and often wanting more information. She is a true asset to her profession and will be to any organizations she has the opportunity to present for.

In Kind Regards,
